This award of $5,000 will be used to enhance the awardee's research through activities such as buying time on instrumentation, attending advanced courses, traveling to collaborator's labs or other activities that can be demonstrated to enhance research that would otherwise not be possible. Applicants should provide a one-page description of the proposed activities and a short explanation of how these activities will positively impact their research. A current CV should also be included. The awardees will be selected based on their record of research accomplishment and the projected research impact of their use of the award funds.
