Kick Back

You'll want to keep this pair of compression socks, which are cuter than other brands, handy for achy legs on long flights (especially if you're cramped in the middle seat). (Soxxy Nighthawk, $35; soxxy.com)

Travel in Style

It's hard to pull off comfy without looking schlumpy, but this combo is made of a bamboo-cotton blend knit to feel like sweats, so it's equal parts casual and tasteful. (Peep-shoulder tee, $130, and skirt, $90; uptownsweets.com)

to buy your ticket for prime pickings. "But there's always fuel, aircraft equipment changes, and more seats are added—right approaches," says Benét Wilson, the air travel expert for will notify you whenever a better seat becomes available. And 1, go for the one in the back—the front seats won't recline.
