Carnegie Mellon University

2011 Men's Cross Country

Carnegie Mellon University

Education

- One of the nation's leading private research universities
- Inter-disciplinary approach provides graduates with professional and technical skills and a strong science and liberal arts background
- Transformed from a technical school designed to serve the needs of Pittsburgh's industrial workers, to its position today as one of the world's great universities
- The University includes seven colleges, many of which are nationally ranked

- College of Engineering
- School of Computer Science
- College of Fine Arts
- College of Humanities and Social Sciences
- Tepper School of Business
- H. John Heinz III School of Public
- Mellon College of Science
- Policy and Management

- Offers a wide range of research centers, scientists and researchers from varied fields, and an inter-disciplinary approach to solving complex problems
- Set between a quiet, residential neighborhood and Pittsburgh's Schenley Park, the Carnegie Mellon campus spans about 105 acres and includes 74 buildings
- Student activities on campus vary from more than 100 special interest clubs and organizations, intramural sports, and a newspaper and radio station, to fraternity and sorority events and varsity competition in 17 sports

Pittsburgh

- Called the "City of Bridges"
- City of downtown skyscrapers, scenic rivers and steep hillsides
- Picturesque neighborhoods, a friendly, small-town atmosphere with parks, convenient shopping and active community centers.
- Scenic lakes, rural farms and mountain wilderness are a short drive away
- Entertainment for young professionals stretches Walnut Street in Shadyside, Station Square and Mt. Washington
- Home to NFL's Steelers, MLB's Pirates and NHL's Penguins for the sports enthusiast
- A world renowned symphony and ballet combined with theatre, museums, art galleries and concert halls complement the cultural attractions of the city.

University Athletic Association

- An NCAA Division III athletic conference founded in 1986
- Believe that it is beneficial to compete with like academic institutions spread over geographically expansive areas
- Seeks excellence in athletics while maintaining a perspective that holds the student and the academic mission of the institution as the center of focus
- Other members include:

Brandeis University (Waltham, Mass.), Case Western Reserve University (Cleveland), University of Chicago, Emory University (Atlanta), New York University, University of Rochester and Washington University in St. Louis

- All members are private, research universities situated in major metropolitan areas
- Each has several undergraduate programs and divisions as well as graduate and professional programs. Academically, these institutions are rated among the best in the country and athletically have won numerous national titles in both individual and team sports.

2011 Carnegie Mellon Men's Cross Country

Head Dario Donatelli

Dario Donatelli enters his 11th season as the head men's cross country coach in 2011 after the team's sixth consecutive showing at the NCAA Division III Championships and seventh during his tenure. Donatelli is also the head women's cross country and men's and women's track & field coach. He began his coaching career at Carnegie Mellon in 1987 with the women's cross country team.

Donatelli, a 1981 graduate of Carnegie Mellon, was named the University Athletic Association Men's Cross Country Coach of the Year for the first time in 2005 when the Tartans took the men's UAA title. The award marked Donatelli's sixth UAA Cross Country Coach of the Year honor, as he also received the award in 1999 for the fifth time as the women's coach after the Tartans captured their third UAA crown under his leadership.

The 2010 team hosted the Mideast Regional, finishing third at a course off campus. The Tartans received an at-large bid to the NCAA Championships where they finished 20th with five individuals making a second appearance.

In 2009, the Tartans finished 12th in the nation behind a total team effort and second at the Mideast Regional and the University Athletic Association Championship. This followed a 2008 Mideast Regional Championship where Donatelli was named Regional Coach of the Year for the second time, as Brian Harvey won the race for the second time. The team then placed 13th at the national meet where Harvey earned his second All-America honor.

Overall, Donatelli has coached nine All-America and 65 All-Region athletes in cross country and 27 All-America athletes in track.

In addition to their athletic honors, Donatelli's athletes are among the best students at Carnegie Mellon and the nation at large. The cross country team received USTFCCA All-Academic Team honors for the 16th straight year with an impressive GPA of 3.25 while Nate Bussiere and Evan Gates met the individual athletic requirements.
