

Carnegie Mellon University

Career & Professional Development Center

Student Employment Eligibility

A student employee is defined as, “an individual whose employment at the university is incidental to the pursuit of obtaining a degree”. Any student who is enrolled at least half-time (18 units) in a degree-granting program at Carnegie Mellon can participate in the campus employment program. To qualify to work during the summer session, the student must be admitted to, or continuing in, a degree-granting program at Carnegie Mellon the following semester.