Remaking Post-Industrial Cities

Lessons from North American and Europe

Edited by Donald K. Carter

"Remaking Post-Industrial Cities tells the incredible story of the death and life of ten Rustbelt cities across America and Europe. It is required reading for mayors, economic developers, and urbanists." – Richard Florida, author of Rise of the Creative Class, University of Toronto, Canada

"If you care about the state and future of our legacy cities this mosaic portrait of ten metropolises in the US and Europe is essential reading." – Rip Rapson, The Kresge Foundation, US

"This book is a must have, must read for all of us who are fascinated by the past, present, and future of our urban environments." – John Thompson, The Academy of Urbanism, UK

Remaking Post-Industrial Cities: Lessons from North America and Europe examines the transformation of post-industrial cities after the precipitous collapse of big industry in the 1980s on both sides of the Atlantic, presenting a holistic approach to restoring post-industrial cities.

Developed from the influential 2013 Remaking Cities Congress, conference chair Donald K. Carter brings together ten in-depth case studies of cities across North America and Europe, documenting their recovery from 1985 to 2015. Each chapter discusses the history of the city, its transformation, and prospects for the future. The cases cross-cut these themes with issues crucial to the resilience of post-industrial cities including sustainability; doing more with less; public engagement; and equity (social, economic and environmental), the most important issue cities face today and for the foreseeable future.

This book provides essential "lessons learned" from the mistakes and successes of these cities, and is an invaluable resource for practitioners and students of planning, urban design, urban redevelopment, economic development and public and social policy.
