PETER BOSSELMANN is Professor of Urban Design at the University of California, Berkeley, and a world-renowned practitioner and urban theorist. He has established urban simulation laboratories in Milan, New York City, and Tokyo, modeled after the Berkeley laboratory that has been under his direction since 1983. His most recent book is the subject of his lecture, Urban Transformation: Understanding City Design and Form.

Bosselmann has won numerous design awards for his projects and research from the American Institute of Architects, the American Society of Landscape Architects, and the American Planning Association and has held teaching residencies at the Politecnico di Milano, the Royal Danish Academy of Art, and the University of Tokyo. An invited exhibition of his work was shown at the Triennale in Milan.
