The Department of Modern Languages
The Major in Russian Studies

Faculty Advisor
Dr. Tatyana Gershkovich, Assistant Professor of Russian Studies
tgershko@andrew.cmu.edu

Required Units: 96-99
(108-111 for students with no prior training in Russian)

The major in Russian Studies is an interdepartmental, interdisciplinary major jointly administered by the Departments of History and Modern Languages. Students are asked to fulfill requirements in history and in language and culture. Additionally, students are strongly encouraged to study abroad in Russia or other parts of the Russian-speaking world. Not only does study abroad offer students a memorable and formative experience of cultural immersion, it also helps them advance to their highest possible levels of linguistic and cultural competence by the time they graduate.

Students may double count one course taken for the Russian Studies major that is also being used to fulfill the requirements of other majors, minors, and programs.

1. Core Courses in Russian 36-48 units
Complete all four courses.
82-191 Elementary Russian I
82-192 Elementary Russian II

N.B. Students with native or near-native proficiency in Russian or with prior study at the elementary or intermediate level may begin language study at a higher level, based on consultation with the major advisor. Students placing higher will complete a minimum of three courses in Modern Languages plus 3 units of content-based study in Russian (36 units).

2. Core Courses in Modern Languages 24 units
Complete two courses.

For this project, students may choose to work closely with a professor in History (79-491) or in Modern Languages (82-599). This in-depth research project offers students a unique opportunity to complete a piece of original scholarship in their areas of interest, and to develop an expertise with which to embark on future intellectual and professional pursuits. The number of credits for the thesis reflects the expectation that students will do significant work in Russian and use the project to advance their linguistic competence.

Recent theses topics have included:
Khrushchev, de-Stalinization, and the Twentieth Congress of the Communist Party
Lunokhod and the Soviet Space Program
Constructivism and New Sight: A Rhetorical Analysis of the Early Soviet Political Poster
Alexander Rodchenko and the Development of Constructivism in Russian Art
Boris Akunin and Contemporary Russian Fiction

Senior Honors Thesis
Students who meet the eligibility requirements may extend their Russian Studies Thesis (9 units) into a Dietrich College Honors Thesis (18 units) with the approval of their advisor. Information on this program can be found at http://www.cmu.edu/dietrich/undergraduate/programs/shp/

Highly Recommended Opportunities for Majors
Study Abroad
Students are strongly encouraged to spend a semester or summer in Russia through an approved exchange program. Consult with your advisor and the Office of International Education (OIE) about possible options. Many exchange programs offer instruction at internationally recognized universities in Russian language, history, literature, and culture. They also offer travel to ancient sites and cities, visits to museums, palaces, exhibitions, and monuments, and the opportunity to live with a Russian host family. Scholarship opportunities are available.

Senior Seminar in Modern Languages
82-580 (3 units)
The senior seminar, offered in the senior spring semester, brings together majors from all of Modern Languages. In addition to offering students strategies for maintaining and advancing their language skills after they graduate, this course provides an occasion for students to reflect on their own language-learning experiences. Students are prompted to consider larger issues surrounding language learning and multiculturalism in the United States and globally.

Faculty Exchange Program
In 1993, the College of Humanities and Social Sciences at CMU initiated a faculty exchange program with the Russian State University of the Humanities (RGGU), one of the foremost universities in Russia, located in Moscow. Carnegie Mellon has hosted faculty members from RGGU specializing in history, language, and philosophy. These professors have joined our departments for a semester, offering unique courses on subjects not generally available to our students. Faculty members from Carnegie Mellon have visited Moscow, using the RGGU exchange to pursue archival research, attend conferences, and collaborate on common projects. The exchange offers students an opportunity to study language from native speakers, gain exposure to different perspectives on history and politics, and gather firsthand knowledge about recent developments in Russia. In addition, the exchange can provide important contacts for students interested in pursuing careers abroad.

This is presented as a three-year (sophomore-junior-senior) plan for completing the major requirements. It is intended to show that this program can be completed in as few as three years, not that it must be. In some instances students may enter their major and begin major course requirements as early as their first year. Students should consult their advisor when planning their program.

This plan is also an example of the suggested sequence of study for students who have had little or no prior exposure to the language.
