

Carnegie Mellon University

Memory Lab

Help contribute to the study of Memory from your own home!

Abstract

In this study you will take two memory tests - in one you'll remember digits while completing a parallel task. The other will test your memory for the locations of words as they appear.

Description

This is a memory experiment that should only take a total of 45-55 minutes. On completion, you will earn $13.

This is an online study that requires a computer and a good internet connection. The study access code and some instructions will be given through zoom. If you are interested in this study, or want to learn more, contact

memorylabcmu@gmail.com to indicate interest. We will contact you and set up a time to participate.

Eligibility Requirements

- Fluent in English
- 18-35 years old
- Access to a computer with microphone and working camera
 - Experiment will require you to speak out loud for some parts
- Access to a quiet room to participate in the study