American Physician Scientists Association

UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH LOCAL CHAPTER

WHO WE ARE:

The American Physician Scientists Association (APSA) is a national, student-led organization dedicated to supporting physician-scientist trainees throughout all stages of their training and career development.

The mission of the University of Pittsburgh APSA Local Chapter is to bring together the various physician-scientist training routes at our university, create a networking platform across different levels of training and institutions, and increase the presence of Pitt physician-scientists within the local, regional, and national community.

WHAT WE OFFER:

Networking

Through APSA, you can connect with a network of Pitt physician-scientist alumni as well as current MD and MD/PhD students pursuing research careers.

Mentorship

Current MD and MD/PhD students in APSA are happy to answer questions, give advice, or connect you with resources.

Workshops

Come to our events to learn about what a physician-scientist career entails and gain skills which will set you up for long-term success.

We look forward to seeing you at our events!
