Why it's important to act now

- People are living longer these days. That’s a good thing, but it means you’ll probably need more money to cover daily expenses and healthcare when you retire.
- On average, Social Security will provide only 40% of the money you will need during your retirement years.¹
- Time is on your side: the earlier you act, the more it can do for you.

Contribute to the Carnegie Mellon University Faculty and Staff Retirement Plan today

Whether it's years down the road or just around the corner, the time to start saving for retirement is now

Time can have a significant impact on your retirement savings

The earlier contributions start, the more time and money can work through the power of compounding. There is a potential for growth on the funds contributed, and for growth on their earnings.

!Graph showing the impact of saving over time.

TThis graph represents a hypothetical illustration showing how much money a person would have if they saved $100 a month for 20, 30 and 40 years. The illustration assumes a 6% annual return. It is purely hypothetical and is not intended to predict or project the actual performance of any account. Actual returns will vary. Does not reflect deduction of expenses that would result in lower returns. Assumes no withdrawals during the period indicated. All figures are rounded to the nearest thousand.

² Does not apply to Roth contributions. All withdrawals are subject to ordinary income tax. Withdrawals prior to age 59½ may be subject to an additional 10% penalty. Distributions from 403(b) plans before age 59½, severance from employment, death, or disability may be prohibited, limited, and/or subject to substantial tax penalties. Different restrictions may apply to other types of plans.
