From embassy headquarters to non-governmental organizations, think tanks to advocacy organizations, and consulting firms to media outlets, Washington, DC, is a focal point for many international and public policy activities.

Undergraduates from any course of study who value firsthand policy experience are invited to apply to the Carnegie Mellon University Washington Semester Program (CMU/WSP), sponsored by the university’s Institute for Politics and Strategy (IPS). In this semester-long program, students live, work, and study in Washington, DC, coming into direct contact with political, business, and community leaders and learning about the most pressing policy issues of the day.

Students earn 48 units for the CMU/WSP, interning twenty-four hours per week in any sector or field of interest within Washington, DC, while taking CMU classes taught by IPS faculty. The Institute for Politics and Strategy sponsors events and forums for students to enhance their understanding of Washington as a hub of national and international policy making.
During the CMU/WSP, I experienced how the federal government works, how different organizations collaborate on issues of shared concern, and how foreign policy is implemented. I became an adept networker, connecting with people who shared valuable life advice and exposed me to career possibilities. I acquired a genuine sense of what it is like to work in a bureaucracy and what limitations and opportunities that may entail. I have become more confident because of this semester’s journey and these insights will shape the remainder of my time at Carnegie Mellon.

Friedman Fellowships

Students with strong academic records and financial need who are accepted to the CMU/WSP are also eligible for a Friedman Semester Fellowship, which helps to defray the cost of a semester in Washington, DC.

The Milton and Cynthia Friedman Fellowship Grants were created through a generous gift from Cynthia Friedman, currently a trustee of the university, in memory of her husband Milton, an alumnus of Carnegie Mellon. The grants encourage and support student participation in internships located in the nation’s capital. They are designed to foster significant work experiences that complement students’ academic studies and assist them as they make career and graduate education decisions. During the fall and spring semesters, fellowships are available on a competitive basis to undergraduates accepted into the CMU/WSP. There is no separate application process for the Friedman Fellowship. Award decisions are made by the admissions committee based on the strength of students’ CMU/WSP applications.

CMU/WSP Eligibility

Full-time undergraduates from any college at Carnegie Mellon University are eligible to apply.

Applicants should demonstrate a strong academic record with a minimum cumulative QPA of 3.0. Exceptions may be made for students with lower QPAs based on strong recommendation letters and application materials.

The junior year is the ideal time to participate in the CMU/WSP. However, the program is open to second-semester sophomores, juniors, or first-semester seniors. Sophomores must declare a primary major before attending the CMU/WSP.

Academics
Carnegie Mellon students who participate in the CMU/WSP will earn a total of 48 units through the Institute for Politics and Strategy. All courses are taught by Carnegie Mellon faculty. Students intern approximately twenty-four hours per week and take classes three to four afternoons/evenings per week. Each class meets only once per week. The academic program consists of the following:

CORE COURSES (24 units total)
• 84-450 Policy Forum (12 units)
• 84-360 Internship Seminar (12 units)

ELECTIVE SEMINARS (24 units total)
Offerings vary each semester. The anticipated spring 2020 elective seminars are:

• 84-348 Advocacy, Policy, and Practice (6 units)
• 84-331 Money, Media, and the Power of Data in Decision Making (6 units)

Policy Forum
Carnegie Mellon University’s Policy Forum seminar takes a critical look at Washington, DC, as an arena for decision making in domestic politics and US foreign policy. It does so through weekly roundtable discussions with a diverse set of thought leaders. Based on intellectually significant essays that students are expected to read in advance of each class, these discussions give students an opportunity to ask probing questions about the three branches of the US government, media, embassies, advocacy groups, international organizations, and nongovernmental organizations.

Internship Seminar
The internship is the experiential “core” of the Washington Semester Program. In addition to a part-time internship, students will meet in the weekly seminar to report and reflect on their internship experiences, often joined by DC-based CMU alumni working in a variety of professional fields. The internship and internship seminar require approximately twenty-four hours per week.

Minor in Politics and Public Policy
Students who participate in the CMU/WSP are eligible to complete the Politics and Public Policy minor. Rooted in the discipline of political science, the minor investigates US public policy issues and other matters of domestic politics while providing students hands-on and practical learning experiences.

In addition to the 48 units earned by CMU/WSP participation, students must complete one of the following courses offered at Carnegie Mellon University’s Pittsburgh or Qatar campus:
• 84-104 Decision Processes in American Political Institutions (fall only)
• 84-275 Comparative Politics (spring only)
• 84-326 Theories of International Relations (fall only)

Students must also complete one of the following courses offered at Carnegie Mellon University’s Pittsburgh or Qatar campus:
• 84-110 Foundations of Political Economy
• 73-102 Principles of Microeconomics

The additional courses required for the minor may be taken before or after participation in the CMU/WSP.

Housing on the Hill
Students will live in the Senate Square Building as part of the Washington Intern Housing Network (WIHN). The residence is a quick fifteen minute walk to the CMU/WSP offices and a five minute walk to Union Station and the metro, providing easy access to all of Washington, DC.

Each apartment houses six to seven students and includes a living room, three bedrooms, two bathrooms, and a kitchen. The apartments are fully furnished and equipped with standard kitchen appliances, cookware, and dinnerware, an in-unit washer and dryer, cable and high-speed Internet. Students may take advantage of the on-site fitness facilities, mailboxes, lounge areas, twenty-four hour concierge service, media room, business center, and rooftop pool and lounge area. A grocery store is also located next to the Senate Square facility.

Program Cost
Students who attend the CMU/WSP will continue to pay Carnegie Mellon tuition, the standard double room fee, and other fees to Carnegie Mellon for the semester in which they are in Washington, DC. Students are eligible to receive the same financial aid package they receive while attending Carnegie Mellon. To discuss specifics of financial aid packages, please contact The HUB.
