Prof. Lauhon is a Professor and Associate Chair in the Department of Materials Science and Engineering at Northwestern University. He received a Ph.D. in Physics from Cornell with Wilson Ho (2000) and a B.S. in Physics from the University of Michigan (1993). Prior to joining Northwestern in 2003, he was a postdoctoral researcher in the Department of Chemistry and Chemical Biology at Harvard University with Charles Lieber. At Northwestern, the Lauhon group investigates novel structure-property relationships that arise in nanostructured materials with an emphasis on spatially resolved measurements. His work encompasses synthesis, characterization, and modeling, and has been recognized with an NSF CAREER Award, a Sloan Fellowship in Chemistry, and a Camille Dreyfus Teacher Scholar Award.
