

Biography

Byung Yang Lee is currently an associate professor at the Department of Mechanical Engineering, Korea University, Seoul, Korea. He worked in KT as a microwave telecommunication engineer for 9 years. Afterwards, he received his PhD degree in physics at Seoul National University, in 2010. He also spent 2 years as postdoctoral fellow at University of California, Berkeley. His current research interests include biochemical nanosensors, nanomaterial synthesis, and soft actuators and devices.