

Daniel A. Heller, PhD

Head, Cancer Nanomedicine Laboratory

Associate Member, Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center

Associate Professor, Weill Cornell Medicine, Cornell University

Dr. Daniel Heller is the Bristol-Myers Squibb/James D. Robinson III Junior Faculty Chair, Head of the Cancer Nanomedicine Laboratory, and an Associate Member in the Molecular Pharmacology Program at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center, and an Associate Professor in the Pharmacology and Physiology, Biophysics & Systems Biology Departments at the Weill Cornell Graduate School of Medical Sciences of Cornell University. Dr. Heller obtained his PhD in chemistry from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 2010, working in the chemical engineering laboratory of Michael Strano. He completed a Damon Runyon Cancer Research Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowship in the biomedical engineering laboratory of Robert Langer at the David H. Koch Institute for Integrative Cancer Research at MIT in 2012. He is a 2012 recipient of the National Institutes of Health Director's New Innovator Award, a 2015 Kavli Fellow, a 2017 recipient of the Pershing Square Sohn Prize for Young Investigators in Cancer Research, a 2017 Cycle for Survival Equinox Innovation Awardee, a 2018 American Cancer Society Research Scholar, and a 2018 NSF CAREER Awardee. Dr. Heller's work focuses on the development of nanoscale technologies for the treatment, diagnosis, and research of cancer.
