Alcohol and Drugs

Possession and use of illicit drugs and the unlawful possession and use of alcohol are wrong and harmful. Unlawful possession, use or distribution of illicit drugs or alcohol by students or employees on Carnegie Mellon University property or as part of any of its activities is prohibited. Compliance with the following policy is mandatory and violation of the policy will be cause for disciplinary action.

The university is committed to complying with applicable laws relating to unlawful possession, use or distribution of alcohol or illicit drugs (referenced below) and reflects that compliance in its policies and procedures.

Carnegie Mellon faculty, administrators, staff and students recognize the responsibility and potential harm inherent in the use of alcoholic beverages. The following policy governs all university social activities on and off campus at which alcoholic beverages will be served. For purposes of this policy, university social activities are any social activities on university property or for which university funds or other resources are used. All members of the university community have an individual and collective responsibility to adhere to the following policy:

1. In all circumstances, the university expects its faculty, administrators, staff, students, alumni and their respective guests to conduct themselves, both individually and collectively, in a responsible manner. Illegal, abusive or excessive consumption of alcohol resulting in interference with the rights of other persons, personal injury or damage to property will result in severe disciplinary action, beginning with monetary sanctions, up to and including suspension or expulsion.

2. In residential areas such as private residence hall rooms, campus apartments, fraternities or sororities, there exists an expectation of privacy; however, in these areas members of the university and their guests are still governed by federal, state and local laws (or applicable laws for other jurisdictions where Carnegie Mellon operates) and will be responsible for their own behavior. In addition, any actions which violate the law and/or the rights of others, or in some way damage personal or public property, will result in the loss of the above-mentioned privacy rights and will be cause for university intervention and enforcement.

3. Permission to serve alcoholic beverages at a social activity where students will or may be in attendance can only be obtained through the dean of Student Affairs. Before permission is given, a dean, department head, faculty member or staff member who is on the exempt payroll must take personal responsibility for ensuring that alcoholic beverages are served only to those persons who are of legal age. Such responsibility may be assumed only after completing the Social Host Responsibility session offered through the Campus Police. This session will be offered periodically throughout the year. Please contact the Campus Police at 412.268.2323 for details.

In addition, the following guidelines must be observed for all events:

a. Social activities at which alcoholic beverages are served must take place in an area that is private or semi-private. Privacy is determined by the ability to control access to the area of the social activity and limit attendance to invited guests only. Alcoholic beverages are not to be consumed anywhere outdoors on the grounds of Carnegie Mellon. Therefore, alcoholic beverages are prohibited at social activities on the Cut, on the Mall, on the fraternity area grounds, on housing grounds, on the athletic field or on any other similar outdoor area either owned or used by the university.

b. A fee must never be charged for the service of alcohol where prohibited by applicable law or without obtaining the appropriate license or meeting the appropriate legal requirements to do so.

c. Public advertising of events at which alcohol is to be served must not include any reference to alcohol, nor may such events be publicly posted outside of the university community.

The unlawful manufacture, distribution, dispensing, possession or use of illicit drugs is prohibited at Carnegie Mellon University.

The university cannot deny access to its property to properly constituted law enforcement agents. Therefore, activity involving the unlawful use or sale of drugs by one student may also, by bringing law enforcement agents to the campus, risk compromising the privacy of the academic community. With the legal and medical welfare of the student in mind, the university cannot approve the medically unsupervised use, possession or distribution of drugs. When such medically unsupervised use, possession or distribution of drugs comes to the attention of the university, the student will be subject to disciplinary action which could include suspension or expulsion.

In any instance where a violation of the laws concerning drugs occurs on the Carnegie Mellon campus or in connection with the activities of Carnegie Mellon's students, the disciplinary policy of the university will permit taking action beyond or separate from any which may be taken by other authorities.

Campus police officers at Carnegie Mellon's Pittsburgh campus must follow Pennsylvania rules of Criminal Procedure and Rules of Evidence when discovering illegal drugs on campus, and then take appropriate legal action.

The medically unsupervised possession, use or distribution of potentially harmful drugs such as marijuana, hallucinogens, amphetamines, barbiturates and opiates is illegal and subject to very harsh penalties. Although the university does not assume the responsibility of acting as an arm of the law, members of the academic community have no immunity from enforcement of the law. Use of many of these drugs may threaten the physical and mental health of the user. Use by one student may also threaten the welfare of other students. Distribution by any student clearly threatens the welfare of the academic community.

In April 2016, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania passed the Medical Marijuana Act of 2016, legalizing certain forms of medical marijuana in Pennsylvania. However, Carnegie Mellon remains bound by various federal narcotics laws that prohibit the distribution, use and possession of marijuana. In particular, Carnegie Mellon complies with the federal Drug Free Schools and Communities Act of 1989. As such, in accordance with federal law all forms of marijuana, including prescription medical marijuana, are prohibited on university property and in university programs.
No employee shall report to work under the influence of drugs used in an unlawful manner. No employee shall unlawfully manufacture, distribute, dispense, possess or use drugs on university property, as part of any university activity or while on duty as a university employee. Any university employee who violates this policy is subject to disciplinary action including suspension and dismissal.

Pursuant to the laws of the United States and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (or applicable laws for other jurisdictions where Carnegie Mellon operates) and university policy, all university employees must notify both their immediate supervisor and the Office of the Provost no later than five days after any criminal drug conviction for a violation occurring in the work place. Within 10 days of receiving actual notice of such a conviction, from the employee or otherwise, the university will notify the appropriate federal agency if an employee engaged in the performance of a federal contract or grant has been convicted of a criminal drug violation. Within 30 days of receiving such notice, the university will take appropriate disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal, or will require the employee to participate satisfactorily in a drug abuse assistance or rehabilitation program.

All university employees are required to abide by this policy as a condition of their employment. Failure to comply with this policy and its notification may jeopardize continued research funding to the university and will be considered grounds for dismissal.

Questions concerning the interpretation or implementation of this policy should be directed to the Associate Vice President for Human Resources, telephone 412.268.1243.

Employees note: It is also a violation of the conditions of employment at Carnegie Mellon to report for work under the influence of alcohol or engage in the consumption of alcohol that impairs performance. Failure to adhere to these rules can lead to disciplinary action taken against the offender, including suspension and dismissal.

UNIVERSITY SANCTIONS

In all of its actions, Carnegie Mellon seeks to uphold the laws of the jurisdictions in which it operates. Insofar as it is permitted by the applicable laws, the university will apply sanctions that could lead to a student being fined, suspended, expelled or referred for prosecution or an employee being disciplined, suspended, dismissed or referred for prosecution for violations of the university standards of conduct contained herein or violation of laws concerning unlawful possession, use or distribution of drugs and alcohol. The university has available a rehabilitation program which is mandatory in such instances where required by law.

The university will impose sanctions for actions that may or may not be violations of the law but are violations of university Standards of Conduct regarding illegal drugs and alcohol.

Health Risks Associated with the Use of Alcohol*

Excessive alcohol use has immediate effects that increase the risk of many harmful health conditions. Immediate risks are most often the result of binge drinking and include the following:

- Injuries, such as motor vehicle crashes, falls, drownings and burns
- Violence, including homicide, suicide, sexual assault and intimate partner violence
- Alcohol poisoning, a medical emergency that results from high blood alcohol levels
- Risky sexual behaviors, including unprotected sex or sex with multiple partners; these behaviors can result in unintended pregnancy or sexually transmitted diseases, including HIV
- Miscarriage and stillbirth or fetal alcohol spectrum disorders (FASDs) among pregnant women

Over time, excessive alcohol use can lead to the development of chronic diseases and other serious problems including:

- High blood pressure, heart disease, stroke, liver disease and digestive problems
- Cancer of the breast, mouth, throat, esophagus, liver and colon
- Learning and memory problems, including dementia and poor school performance
- Mental health problems, including depression and anxiety
- Social problems, including lost productivity, family problems and unemployment
- Alcohol dependence or alcoholism

By not drinking too much, you can reduce the risk of these short- and long-term health risks.

Health Risks Associated with Other Drugs of Abuse

Tobacco and Nicotine Products (cigarettes, e-cigarettes, cigars, bidis, hookah, snuff and chew): Cigarette smoking harms nearly every organ in the body, and smoking is the leading preventable cause of premature death in the United States. Nonsmokers may be exposed to second or thirdhand smoke (residue left on surfaces from cigarette smoke) and are at increased risk for many physical and behavioral health impacts including lung disease, asthma, hyperactivity, and premature death. Health risks of tobacco use include: addiction, cancer, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, stroke, heart attack and vascular disease. E-cigarette vapor has been found to contain carcinogens and toxic chemicals. Until more studies are conducted, the health consequences of repeated exposure to these chemicals is unknown.

Marijuana: Addiction, learning and memory problems, impaired coordination, increased risk of lung infections, anxiety, paranoia and psychotic episodes

Cocaine: Addiction, anxiety, irritability, paranoia, nosebleeds, loss of smell from snorting, skin infection, risk of contracting Hepatitis C or HIV from needle injection, heart attack, stroke, seizures and death

MDMA (Ecstasy, Molly): Addiction, increased heart rate and blood pressure, depression, anxiety, sleep problems and death

Opioids (including heroin, synthetic opioids such as fentanyl and pain relievers available legally by prescription, such as oxycodone, hydrocodone, codeine, and morphine): Addiction, overdose and death, HIV/AIDS, hepatitis, infection of heart lining and valves, liver or kidney disease and, among pregnant women, low birth weight babies

Prescription and Over-the-Counter Drugs of Abuse:

- Opioids (for pain) – Addiction, constipation, depressed breathing and death
- Central Nervous System Depressants (for anxiety and sleep disorders) – Addiction, slowed heart rate and depressed breathing
- Stimulants (for ADHD and narcolepsy) – Addiction, irregular heartbeat, seizures, heart failure, hostility, paranoia and sleep problems
- Dextromethorphan (DXM, active ingredient in cough and cold medicine) – Numbness, nausea and vomiting, increased heart rate and blood pressure, brain damage

Counseling and Psychological Services (CaPS) is available as a resource to the student population for initial assessment of drug and alcohol problems, and referrals to off-campus outpatient and inpatient treatment programs.

University Health Services (UHS) also provides initial assessment of drug and alcohol concerns and referrals to off-campus treatment programs, in addition to substance abuse prevention education, through its Office of Health Promotion. Individual sessions are offered, alongside online programs to assist students in assessing their own usage patterns and reducing the risks associated with substance abuse. UHS also facilitates the College Recovery Community at Carnegie Mellon to support and connect students and their allies who are choosing sobriety.

Information about appropriate community support groups is available through CaPS and UHS. Some of the support programs available in the Pittsburgh area include: Alcoholics Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, Al-Anon and the Adult Children of Alcoholics Network of Greater Pittsburgh.

The university community values the health and safety of its members and supports an environment that encourages students to come to the assistance of one another. To that end, the active medical assistance protocol (AMAP) sets forth an expectation that community members take responsible action when the health or safety of a student is compromised due to overuse or abuse of alcohol or illicit substances and/or as a result of hazing activity.

Amnesty from university disciplinary action and University Police action will be granted to the student(s) for whom medical assistance is summoned and for those seeking assistance from emergency services personnel when all of the following conditions apply:

- An individual contacted emergency services personnel based on a reasonable belief that another individual was in need of immediate medical attention, which had not otherwise been sought, to prevent death or serious bodily injury;
• The individual seeking assistance provided their own name to the emergency services personnel; and

• The individual requesting assistance remained with the individual believed to be in need of medical assistance until emergency services personnel arrived and the need for the concerned individual’s presence had ended.

Those seeking assistance will be assured that the university will likewise not pursue further university action against any individual or organization involved in such an incident when appropriate medical attention is sought. Students who are directly involved in attending to the compromised student until help arrives will also be granted amnesty from university action. Students involved in an incident for which amnesty is granted will be provided appropriate educational or developmental interventions.

In cases where help is indicated but not sought, the most severe disciplinary action will be taken against all students involved.

This protocol extends the university’s previously established Alcohol Medical Assistance Protocol (1999) and is consistent with the spirit of several Pennsylvania laws that include safe harbor provisions granting immunity from criminal prosecution for seeking medical assistance. More information on state immunity laws can be found at cmu.edu/student-affairs/theword/community-policies/amap.

Employees of the university who have a drug or alcohol problem are eligible to take advantage of the Employee Assistance Program.

As an institution of higher education, Carnegie Mellon, in providing an environment designed to facilitate excellence in teaching and research, recognizes the importance of the university’s human resources. The university believes that the job performance of each individual employee determines the quality of the institution as a whole. Furthermore, the university recognizes that job performance may be affected by personal issues that, when addressed in a timely, confidential and professionally supportive manner, can be successfully resolved. Carnegie Mellon, therefore, has established an Employee Assistance Program (EAP), sponsored and paid for by the university, designed to facilitate an individual’s efforts to resolve personal issues that can affect job performance and general well-being.

The EAP provides professional and confidential assistance, information and services to employees and their household members to address pressing issues or to bolster their professional or personal lives. Employees can use the EAP to enhance their own and their family’s well-being by accessing resources related to work/home life balance, quality day care or summer camp for children, stress management, financial and retirement planning, health and wellness issues and many others. The EAP also provides many career development tools, such as supervisory resources, time management techniques, change management guidance, skills development information and other professional issues. Lastly, the EAP can help individuals address personal issues that may have an impact on their personal and professional lives. Topics that can be addressed through the EAP include: marital, troubled family members or children, alcohol or drug abuse, psychological or financial and legal issues. In these situations, the EAP can provide direct assistance or refer one to the appropriate resource to help find resolution. All counseling through the EAP is on a voluntary basis, even if recommended to the employee by management. Consultation or contact with the EAP in any way will not jeopardize an individual’s job security, limit promotional opportunities within the university, or relieve the employee of Emergency services personnel include Carnegie Mellon University Police, CMU Student Emergency Medical Services and other university staff (i.e., Resident assistants, community advisors and housefellows) who serve in an emergency response capacity. Amnesty may similarly be granted, per the laws cited in this protocol, when non-university law enforcement agencies and/or emergency medical services are contacted though the university will generally have no authority in those determinations.

Employee Resources

[1] Emergency services personnel include Carnegie Mellon University Police, CMU Student Emergency Medical Services and other university staff (i.e., Resident assistants, community advisors and housefellows) who serve in an emergency response capacity. Amnesty may similarly be granted, per the laws cited in this protocol, when non-university law enforcement agencies and/or emergency medical services are contacted though the university will generally have no authority in those determinations.
his or her responsibility to meet acceptable job performance and attendance standards. Information regarding any employee using the services will be held in strictest confidence by the EAP counseling service. No information will be released regarding an individual without written authorization from that employee.

Carnegie Mellon has contracted with a private counseling and service organization to administer the confidential EAP services. The EAP provides access to professional counselors to assess problems and provide referrals for those individuals requiring specialized or long-term assistance in resolving issues. There is no cost for initial assessments and/or referrals; however, fees for the services of referral resources are the responsibility of the individual and/or his or her group health plan. The EAP will coordinate referrals, where possible, with the employee's existing health insurance coverage in order to minimize costs to the individual.

SELF-REFERRAL

Employees can elect to use the EAP service at their own initiative and may contact the EAP directly. A counselor will work with the employee to assist in identifying the cause of the problem, resolving the problem, and, as appropriate, referring the employee to other treatment or counseling. Any assistance or referral provided by the EAP will remain confidential.

The EAP website also provides a 24-hour, seven-day a week source for information, solutions and practical tips for managing time, work, money, relationships, family issues, etc. The EAP website and contact information can be found at cmu.edu/hr/work-life/support/eap.

HOUSEHOLD MEMBER ASSISTANCE

Any member of an employee's household, including his or her registered Domestic Partner, may use the services of the EAP. Once contacted, a counselor will provide the necessary assessment over the telephone and, if necessary, will arrange for further counseling or other services. Again, initial assessments and referrals are provided to household members at no cost; however, fees for the services of referral resources are the responsibility of the household member and/or his or her group health plan.

TIME OFF FOR COUNSELING

Employees are expected to use the EAP on their own time. Any time off from work to attend a counseling session is treated the same as other absences due to personal illness, injury or medical appointments. Arrangements should be made with the employee's supervisor in advance to schedule time away from work or make up any time lost.

SUPERVISORY REFERRAL

Management referral to the EAP is based on:

1. A request by the employee for assistance with a personal issue; or
2. A pattern of decline in an employee's work performance or attendance; or
3. A particular on-the-job incident that indicates the possible presence of a personal issue.
An employee’s supervisor may suggest an EAP referral when he/she detects a decline in an employee’s on-the-job behavior or overall work performance. The EAP and Human Resources provide assistance to supervisors in recognizing and referring issues that may be appropriate for counseling services.

Supervisors may contact the EAP and receive objective advice on employee relations, performance issues, interpersonal work conflicts, etc. It is not the supervisor’s job to attempt to diagnose an employee’s personal issues. It is the supervisor’s responsibility to correct poor job performance through the use of the university’s Progressive Disciplinary Procedure. At the same time, all supervisors at the university are strongly encouraged to take full advantage of the EAP and make referrals whenever there is any indication of job performance difficulty.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING

Specialized training for faculty, supervisors, and upper level administrators will be offered to help them recognize job performance issues which may be a result of personal problems or substance abuse. Other training and awareness seminars and workshops will be made available as necessary.

RELEASE OF INFORMATION

All counseling is conducted in strict confidence and no information from an individual's record will be provided to anyone without the individual’s written consent.
