AB Tech

The Activities Board Technical Committee, commonly known as AB Tech, is the student organization charged with handling the technical production of Carnegie Mellon sponsored events, including all events organized by the Activities Board. AB Tech provides high quality, professional grade entertainment production services, including sound reinforcement, lighting design, and event management at heavily subsidized rates to the Carnegie Mellon University community. Clients include student groups, university faculty & administration, and various independent companies and other organizations.

All University Orchestra

All University Orchestra is a community of CMU undergrads, graduate students, staff, and faculty who love to make music. Everyone is welcome to participate! We have three ensembles: Symphony Orchestra (a full-scale symphony orchestra), String Theory (a string ensemble), and Flutonium (a flute choir). Each puts on one concert per semester, available free of charge to members of the CMU community and the public. We have an informal placement audition process to ensure we place everybody into an appropriate ensemble and achieve proper balance across parts. No need to stress about these - anybody who wants to can participate.

C#

C# is an organization that develops programs that contribute to the growth of a supportive musical community where members are encouraged to unwind from academics by challenging themselves as singers, performers, and leaders. The community is built around C#'s co-ed performance a cappella, C# Singers, and performance choir, Db Singers. Additionally C# has two low commitment opportunities for singers in the CMU communities, biweekly Open Rehearsals and Concert Groups. C#'s mission is pursued through focused emphasis on developing platforms for collaborative learning, support, and vocal performance opportunities for new, casual, and experienced vocal ensemble performers and groups.

Dancers' Symposium

Dancers' Symposium provides an open and supportive environment to further the exposure of dance, music, student choreography, and student performance at Carnegie Mellon University. There are no requirements to audition; people of all backgrounds, cultures, majors, and genders are encouraged to participate. Diverse styles of choreography and lyrical content are encouraged. One two-act show is produced each semester, consisting of staging, lighting, and student costume design. All performances are open to the public. Furthermore, Dancers' Symposium seeks to be an active member of the university community by offering open dance classes taught by organization members and by working with local dance companies to bring additional classes and performances to campus. Dancers' Symposium is composed of dancers, choreographers, directors, and the dance community.

Jazz Club

The jazz club is an all-inclusive organization dedicated to promoting the development and enjoyment of jazz at Carnegie Mellon. We seek to bring together jazz musicians at CMU and provide them with the means to play together and develop and explore their interest in jazz. Anyone, regardless of skill level or experience, is welcome to join. The only condition for membership is to be respectful of each other and the facilities provided. Among the activities organized by this club are weekly jam session (altered due to COVID), monthly workshops, public performances, and trips to local events.

Joyful Noise

Joyful Noise is a Christian a cappella singing group currently composed of students from Carnegie Mellon University. It is open to any university student by audition; in the past members have hailed from the University of Pittsburgh and the Community College of Allegheny County. The group was formed in October 1993 for the purpose of glorifying God through music, singing a cappella songs in styles ranging from hymns to popular songs. In addition, we use alternate media to convey God's love and speak about the joy of a relationship with Christ.

Kiltie Band

Our goal, for 111 years and counting, is to provide an opportunity for any student to continue with musical performance while at CMU. We have no auditions and welcome new members with skills of all levels. We march and perform at all home football games and perform traditional concerts during the rest of the year.

Scotch 'n' Soda Theatre

As one of the nation's oldest student theatre organizations, Carnegie Mellon University's Scotch'n'Soda Theatre is an entirely student-run group dedicated to the development of theatrical works and educating the campus community on all aspects of theatre. Scotch'n'Soda is an interdisciplinary organization that values a versatile and diverse constituency devoted to creating unique, innovative, and entertaining products. In collaborating on these products, Scotch'n'Soda builds a strong social network both on campus and off, fostering a safe, supportive environment for creative exploration and artistic expression. Ticket prices are kept low or are free of charge in order to encourage student patronage, and Scotch'n'Soda strives to make its shows accessible to all audience members while simultaneously challenging them to discover exciting new works and revisiting old favorites.

Sigma Alpha Iota – International Music Fraternity

Sigma Alpha Iota is an organization which promotes interaction among those who share a commitment to music. Members of SAI are active in all areas of campus music and campus life, working closely with faculty, administration, campus and community groups, music professionals and patrons. In addition to personal encouragement and support, members may receive scholarships, loans and awards in many areas at all levels of music-related study. Sigma Alpha Iota has long been recognized as a leader in the field of music and provides a lifetime of fraternity contact.

Tartan Wind Ensemble

The TWE provides an opportunity for any person affiliated with the University, including but not limited to students, staff, faculty, or alumni, to rehearse and perform in a wind ensemble in a recreational manner. We have no auditions and perform for the campus community at least once a semester. This semester, we are still making music, virtually!

Treblemakers

The Treblemakers are a competitive co-ed a cappella group at Carnegie Mellon University. We have members from a wide range of majors, from music theater to computer science. We work together to bring our visions to life and share our passion for music with the community. We pride ourselves on our eclectic collection of music from many genres, although we especially enjoy performing recognizable works from many eras of popular music, from classic rock to adult alternative to modern pop. We take inspiration from others both at Carnegie Mellon and beyond and encourage our members to propose and arrange pieces for performance. Visit our YouTube page for audio and video clips of some of our performances, or come check us out at a live show!
