

Paul S. Goodman Endowed Doctoral Award

TEPPER SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

- Are you an OBT doctoral student at Tepper or have an OBT faculty member on your CMU dissertation committee?
- Does your research make innovative use of field data?
- Does it have substantive implications for practice?

This award raised by alumni, friends and family honors the late Paul S. Goodman, former Richard M. Cyert Professor of Organizational Psychology. Professor Goodman was committed to tackling organizational problems to advance theory and improve practice through creative field research methods. This $2000 award is intended for an awardee at or near the dissertation/proposal stage whose research incorporates innovative use of field data and has substantive implications for practice.

The Award Committee: Gerard Beenen, Associate Dean and Professor of Management, California State University, Fullerton (Tepper 2008); Rangaraj Ramanujam, Professor, Vanderbilt University (Tepper, 2000); and Denise Rousseau, Tepper Faculty (Committee Chair)

To apply, please send a letter (600 words maximum) to the Goodman Award Committee (denise@cmu.edu) describing your dissertation research, how it makes innovative use of field data and its potential practical implications. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact Denise Rousseau (denise@cmu.edu; 8-8470; 412-855-5036)
